HERE AND THERE

Mr. and Mrs. W. Schmidt and Bob Anderson drove to Lethbridge Sunday to attend a gun show there. They and a lot of other crack shots had poor luck in knocking the birds down. When the wind which was blowing blew so hard that if frequently blew the contestants of balance. On the day pigeons were flown over in flight and fall to the ground. That is not that Bill was sporting Monday was not caused by wind it was caused by the recoil of his gun.

L. Culbert of Calgary is at present managing the Bank of Commerce here, while J. Kerr, the manager, takes a short holiday. Mr. Culbert first started his banking career in Gleichen and in the twenties returned to manage a bank for some years being transferred later to Melville. He retired several years ago but being an active man and tired of doing nothing he rejoined the bank and takes over with managers of the different branches locally.

An announcement is made that 150 acres of Canadian new wheat, 10 to 12 feet of stem rust, was grown last year in Southern California and arrived in Canada in time for planting this May. The wheat is enabled nearly 5,000 acres to be sown in Canada this new variety. The system of growing wheat in the winter in California means that the amount of new variety that can be produced, for it enables two crops to be grown in one year, one crop in Canada which is harvested normally in August, and by fast truck to California, sown immediately on land leased by the dominion government there, and harvested there early in May and then rushed back by express truck in time for seeding in the west. This is a remarkable innovation, but which is quite in keeping with the initiative and enterprise shown by all those scientists who are engaged in the production of new varieties of wheat for Canadian use. It is, of course, not yet decided whether C.T. 160 will be licensed, for that decision we have to wait awhile.—World of Wheat.

The Cadet Corps Annual Ouling

(Communicated)
The Gleichen Cadet Corps annual camp at the river is over for 1953. Why couldn't it be lasting longer? What an outing it was! Lots and lots of good food, sunshine to spare and even the old weather man kept the nights warm and only sent rain when we were all nice and comfortable in our blankets.

It's a soothing feeling to hear the rain hitting the tents and soon puts you off to sleep. No one even got damp, only in the swimming hole which was under supervision of Mr. Stary, a qualified life guard. The water was muddy but it felt so good. The river was absolutely out of bounds to us but who would trade a muddy swimming hole where you could swim and splash in peace for one of that high fast, angry river.

Reveille came early at 6 o'clock, then a half hour of P. T. breakfast and lots of it, tastes pretty swell and we did P.T. every morning. It sure helped you up and gets one ready for the field tactics which occupied most of the rest of the day. Our instructors call them tactics but to the most of us it was exercises and I do mean exercises. As Norma Bell put it when she gave herself up, she said that she was to be carried. When Kipp asked who had shot her, she replied: "I shot myself and you would too if you had crawled around on your belly through so much brush and over as many hills as I have this morning to keep from being captured. We were all stiff by 11 o'clock but after that it was really fun even the light fighting where blanks were fired which could only be fired in the air.

And as I heard so many say if I had not missed so many Cadet nights I'll this would have been so much easier. The rifle is awful heavy when you don't know how to handle it properly.

Shooting with the Bren gun was quite an experience to us who had not done so before. The wind was up and so was the range so we could not do any 200 shooting.

We had a very good camp and we are sun burned and tired we would have liked to stay longer on that big flat protected by the steep bank and green trees where the straight row of blankets, mattresses, trips and kit bags warmed in the sun the long line of round kahls stood out so distinctly against the brown background of trees. I must not forget the cool spring on the side of the hill where we got our drinking water.

The only flaw that could be found in the camp was that it was not in the organization of the camp, the food or our activities, but it is beyond your control. It is this, not one of the parents came to visit us and to see for themselves how we can conduct ourselves under strict discipline and under the proper supervision such as is maintained in a Cadet camp.

73 Cadets and Kayettes in all attended and our chief instructor and his four assistant instructors had everything well in hand.

Don't take the Out of Bounds Flags, kids.

LICENCE FROM BIRTH

It would not greatly surprise us if it is 10 years since somebody inside or outside the legislature suggested that each Canadian baby should be licensed within 30 days of birth. Government licensing is becoming so fashionable it seems hardly worth while postponing it until our citizens reach maturity. With the first mailing of a baby bonus cheque could be sent along a plastic water-proofed licence, designed to be slipped into a special "ID" pocket.

Almost every business and profession seems to agree that licensing is beneficial. It helps to keep out of many trades and professions people who would lower standards by cutting prices or in some other way act to the public detriment. It helps to police marketing agreements so as to avoid sales at unbecomingly prices which would, of course, lead to ruin. In fact there are very few evils which all our governments licensing system wouldn't cure.

We are confident that a licence could be obtained which would not only serve adequately for the younger years but which, punched here or

Local Sports Day Events Attract Large Crowd

The sports held last Friday was a very successful affair with a large crowd in attendance. Everyone seemed to have enjoyed themselves. Twice the sports day had to be postponed. The first time Empire Day on account of the farmers being too busy and was postponed to combine with Coronation day celebration. Rain caused cancellation again and the date was set for Farmers Day.

There was every kind of a race that could be thought of for children. Johnny races and baseball games were played. The baseball results: Rosebud, defeated Bassano 8-5. Standard won from Gleichen. 6-2. The last game was called on account of rain. Standard and Rosebud split first and second prizes. Gleichen and Bassano were tied for third prize. Johnny races were won by M. Roushon were unplaced.

Jolopy races results:
First by Grant of Standard driving for T. Fraser.

Second M. Kemp driving a Gundy car.

Third Jean Wheeler driving his own car.

There were four races altogether. Walter Barabash driving for Gleichen. Implements turned over on the east turn and received a cracked petrol. He was taken to the Bassano hospital.

Rain began to fall at six o'clock and caused the cancellation of the bon fire and fireworks.

The dance held in the evening at Meadowbrook Hall was very poorly attended due to the rain. Cars going to the hall had to be pulled out of mud holes by tractors.

there, could authorize the holder to enter a particular trade or profession when the time comes to substitute earned income for baby bonuses. It need not be an expensive operation for the governments and provincial treasuries at a $1 per head fee, because revenue might well lift the expanding burden of municipal taxation. Why not a life long licence to operate in Canada? Here is a platform plank which would apparently have widespread support.

THE WHEAT POOL STORY

At quite a few shipping points local Pool Elevators have been "plugged."

This created an unfortunate condition for Pool members there who want to deliver grain to their own facilities.

In some instances Pool members have asked the question "Why advertise asking for patronage of Pool Elevators when there is no room in the Pool Elevators at our point?"

It should be remembered, however that there are 486 Alberta Wheat Pool country elevators and in many of them there is ample space for grain deliveries. Pool publicity is, therefore, directed to the farm people surrounding such delivery points.

Furthermore, a publicity program to be successful must be comprehensive and continuous. It is important that the farm people should be constantly reminded of the advantages of supporting the Alberta Wheat Pool.

This organization has been largely instrumental in keeping this year's crop in the hands of grain, its presence and strength in an important division of the economic life in this province has prevented a drift towards monopoly practices. Pool Elevators are operating on a cost basis with excess earnings returned to Pool members. Nine-tenths of per cent of Alberta Pool earnings in the 1951-52 crop year went right back into the farmers' pockets.

Pool Elevator policies are based on desires of working farmers and on experience gained over many, many years of co-operative effort. The democratic system under which the Wheat Pool is operated makes it responsive to the aims and desires of operating farmers.

Alberta Wheat Pool publicity has constantly followed a pattern of public education, public relations in villages and towns and cities are continually made aware of the vital importance of agriculture to the economy of the province and to the Canadian nation. In no other province in Canada has agriculture's importance received such a deserved measure of publicity.

"The Wheat Pool Story" is an important one. Its aim is to build a lasting, unswerving farmer co-operative which will be of service to agriculture in generations to come. Also to create a sympathetic atmosphere to every other co-operative in this province.

Funny and Otherwise

The loud-mouthed roosters of West-England, Germany, North Sea Island resort were banished to the main-land recently for the duration of the vacation season. Town officials said the roosters' awful grunts too early and would be executed unless reformed.

"Where's your chicken?" demanded the collector. The sleepy traveler opened an eye, looked at the collector, and closed it again.

"Now, then, where is it? Haven't you got one?"

"The traveler opened his other eye. Then he shook his head.

"All right," said the collector. "You'll have to pay. Five and six, please!" The sleeper took no notice. "Don't you hear me?" cried the collector. "Five-and-six!"

For a moment the weary eyes opened again. Then a slight downing of intelligence broke upon the traveler's countenance, and he answered: "Eleven."

A coffee-cup was traveling through Alabama, and as he waited for a train in a small station, he was met by a lady-looking man in a suit and a hat.

"With an coffee?" he inquired, with an eye to stirring up a little excitement.

The man answered him a drink of coffee. Fifty cups a day. "Fifty cups a day?" demanded the keeper. "How can you drink so much?"

"Well, it helps!" answered the lady one.

A man had been trying to write a telegram with a pen provided by the post office. After three ineffectual starts he turned to the girl behind the counter and said: "Is this by any chance the pen used by King John at the signing of Magna Carta?"

The girl replied: "Inquiries on the right, sir."

"So you suffer from indigestion?" asked the helpful friend. "Well, writing could be better than drinking a pint of warm water after every meal."

"Indigestion?"

Tommy was using the arithmetic lesson. He was waiting for the teacher to correct his sums so that he could go.

"Your last answer is wrong," the teacher said. "You must stay behind."

Tommy glanced at the clock. "How much am I out, sir?" he asked.

"Ten cents," was the reply. Tommy put his hand in his pocket and produced the money.

"I'm in a hurry, sir," he said. "Do you mind if I pay the difference?"

"I'm only working two days a week, now." "Why, I thought you had day-after-day work?" asked the teacher. "Well, I have, but the boss is out four days a week."

Mrs. Long: "Do you feel better this morning, Mrs. Short?" Mrs. Short: "No, an' then again, don't." Mrs. Long: "That's bad, but I don't know whether to say 'I'm sorry or glad.'"

"I trust, Miss Taggart," said the kindly employer to his stenographer, "that you have something in reserve for a rainy day?" "Yes, sir," answered the young woman. "I'm going to marry a man named 'Rainclouds.'"

"Ma," said the little girl who was reading a geography book, "where is the state of matrimony?" "That," said the mother, "is one of the united states."

Sport Programs Keep Boys Straight

MONTREAL.—Montreal police have used sports and other activities effectively to deal with juvenile delinquency.

Canada's largest city has one of the best records on the continent for keeping youngsters out of serious trouble.

Largely responsible are sports clubs founded 17 years ago by Assistant Inspector Orla Pelletier of the Montreal Police Department.

Struck by the number of youngsters getting into trouble, he founded the clubs to give them an outlet for pent-up energies. He recruited his members from youngsters on street corners.

Inspector Pelletier looks at the problem this way:

"Life is a game. The boy who plays his sport right is likely to play his life right. Our job is to help show the way to 10 to 16 year olds."

Timber Wolf Population in Sask. Reduced

PRINCE ALBERT.—The days of the wily timber wolf in northern Saskatchewan are numbered.

According to Harold Read, northern game supervisor here, control programs carried out over the past two winters have sharply reduced the numbers of this ravenous predator, which destroys up to 50,000 caribou, deer, elk and moose annually in Saskatchewan.

The past winter's program rang the death knell for 229 wolves, an estimated 550 unborn timber wolves compared to 1,000 last year and unborn wolves destroyed last year.

Mr. Read said best kills this winter occurred in a "buffer zone" reaching from the 96th parallel in Saskatchewan to the 61st parallel in the Northwest Territories, an area of roughly 40,000 square miles. Here, control measures were undertaken jointly by the provincial game branch and federal Department of Resources and Development.

In the 51st zone, 51 bait sets destroyed 159 adult wolves (21 were found at one set). Further south, 74 sets accounted for 170 wolves. Out last February, the baits consisted of caribou meat impregnated with strychnine. They were located on isolated lakes to avoid poisoning forage-seeking fur hunters and were destroyed prior to the spring ice break-up.

Wolf carcasses were also disposed of, except where used as bait. Mr. Read reported that at one point, just inside the Territories boundary, an unusually large pack of wolves had cleaned up a bait set, plus a freshly killed caribou, and were starting to eat their less fortunate kin. "All we would do was saturate these carcasses with strychnine in the hopes of getting more wolves," he said.

The past winter's program pointed up some interesting facts. 1. Many Saskatchewan timber wolves come originally from the Territories, usually with migrating caribou. 2. Most effective bait sets were those along caribou routes. 3. A Saskatchewan Territories buffer zone is the best way to keep timber wolves out of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Read believed northern wolf control would continue "as long as the definite need for it exists." He expected control measures would bring about a "share" reduction in northern big game, just as deer along Saskatchewan's border were region have multiplied, as a result of 1980 coyote control.

Recently a farmer well-treated a full wagon box of oats for seed the next day. It started to rain that night and continued throughout the next day. The oats were well soaked by then, and it was impossible to get on the land for a few days. In order to keep the seed from heaving, the worried farmer poured on a few pails of cold water. That started the oats sprouting. Refusing to give up, he went ahead and planted the seed and was amazed to see the green shoots appearing the following day.
